What makes us different?

There is something more about the Baan Unrak product. It is not only beautiful, handmade and created out of all natural materials - there is an added value to our products. That added value is in the stories behind the making of them.

In 1993, Baan Unrak Children's Village officially opened a weaving and sewing center in order to provide training and jobs for single mothers and women. Each item represents a happy ending for one of the many displaced women who live on the border between Thailand and Burma.

Everything that the Baan Unrak brand creates is in-house designed and completely handmade. Most of the women at Baan Unrak come from Burma or the neighboring minority Mon or Karen States and so many of our products are inspired by traditional techniques found in these areas. Our hand-operated looms create incredible eco-friendly textiles that are a rare find in today's mass-produced world.

Single mother watching her baby while working at the sewing center.

Above. There is hope for disadvantaged women. Traditional weaving methodologies using hand-operated looms to create beautiful fabrics.

Right. No more abandoned children. A single mother prepares the threads to be put in the loom. The weaving center gives her the opportunity to support her children and a home so they can stay together as a family.
